Dynamic Dalston

DALSTON Square is hosting a line-up of free events from June to August, with the return of the Council's summer programme of activities.

Giant board games, acrobats, comedians and story-tellers are all on the bill to entertain adults and children alike.

Highlights include Universal Board Games bringing rare and popular games to the square on 25 June, 9 July and 30 July; and children's comedy from the Arcola Theatre, which will have residents in stitches, on 2 July, 23 July, 6 August and 20 August.

On 13 August, families will celebrate the fabled story-telling spider, Anansi. Performances by Gahu Dramatic Arts and Yaram Arts are set to add to the drama on the day.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Libraries and Culture, said: “Reflecting the energy, creativity and unique character of Dalston, the Council's summer programme in the square is a fantastic opportunity for Hackney families of all ages to be entertained this season.

“With a packed line-up that's completely free, residents will have more than one opportunity to get involved with what's going on, so no one has to miss out. Get to Dalston Square this summer, have some fun and enjoy what's on offer!”

Author Mark Billingham poses with some of his books as he joined a Telephone Reading Group run by the Community Library Service

Calling book lovers

THE Stoke Newington Literary festival filled halls, chapels and cemeteries earlier this month, but its opening event happened somewhere very different – the homes of visually and physically impaired residents across the borough.

The first of 83 literary themed events, held between 3 and 5 June, was conceived in order to involve those unable to travel to conventional festival venues. For an hour, members of Hackney's Telephone Reading Group came together over the telephone to discuss the crime novel 'Time Of Death'. They were joined by a very special guest: the best selling novel's author, Mark Billingham.

“It was really great to hear and speak to Mark. I will be wanting more of his books delivered to me now”

The book had been distributed in advance of the event by Hackney's Community Library Service, which runs regular sessions for the group throughout the year.

Large print and talking book formats were available for those with visual impairment.

On 3 June, the group discussed the book with the author, quizzing him about its themes. Sandra Levy, one of the group's regular members, lodged a complaint with Mr Billingham, telling him that his book had lost her sleep as she had been unable to put it down until 3am.

She said: “It was really great to hear and speak to Mark. I will be wanting more of his books delivered to me now.”

News in brief

Grow a business with the Entrepreneurship Day event

BUDDING entrepreneurs are set to learn how to launch a successful business with the return of the Council's free Entrepreneurship Day event on 24 June.

Last year's inaugural event saw over 450 people learn the tools to grow a business. This year, the full-day event will feature a range of inspirational talks from business leaders, as well as boot camp sessions looking at financing, marketing, staffing, and networking sessions to talk to business experts.

Secret Sauce Conference will also be there on the day to curate a roster of speakers, including international musician and songwriter Little Boots, acclaimed tech entrepreneur and writer 'The Grumpy Entrepreneur', and veteran of the creative industries, Fred Schmidt, from Capital Factory.

To book a place at the free event, held at Hackney House, Shoreditch, from 10am, visit: bit.ly/EntrepreneurshipDay

By-election called for 21 July in Hackney Central ward

A BY-ELECTION has been called for 21 July in the Hackney Central ward.

It follows the resignation of Cllr Sophie Linden, who has been named Deputy Mayor of London for Policing and Crime, after being nominated by the new Mayor of London, Sadiq Khan.

Those eligible to vote in the by-election will receive a poll card in the weeks before the election. Deadline for candidate nominations is 24 June.

Anyone who is not registered to vote can do so at: www.gov.uk/register-to-vote before 6 July.

Author Kate Saunders judges Carnegie book competition

AWARD-winning children's author Kate Saunders judged 100 students presentations at Hackney's annual Carnegie book competition.

Eleven local schools took part in the competition on 16 June, which celebrates the Carnegie Prize, one of the most prestigious awards for children's literature.

A group from each school presented their thoughts on one of the shortlisted books, using a range of visual art, drama, dance and music, at The Petchey Academy.

The winning school was Clapton Girls' Academy, whose pupils delivered a moving presentation.

The panel of judges were impressed by the students' inspiring presentation on Patrick Ness's book, 'The Rest of Us Just Live Here'.

Kate Saunders said: "This has been a fantastic experience – all of the presentations were brilliant."

The panel of judges also included Council staff and Jo de Guia, owner of Victoria Park Books, who arranged for the author to visit.

Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "The Carnegie competition is a wonderful way of getting young people talking about literature and expressing what stories mean to them."

Pleasure and leisure

FROM cinemas to clubs and carnivals; Hackney Museum is exploring the history of pleasure and leisure in the borough over the past 300 years and is inviting residents to take part.

The museum is running a summer programme of events, from 21 June to 3 September, that includes an exhibition, family workshops, and tours. Celebrations will culminate with Hackney One Carnival on 11 September.

Starting in the early 1800s, the exhibition shows how rich city merchants had luxurious second homes in the rural retreat of Hackney, where they liked to entertain friends and family.

By 1880, the population of Hackney had increased dramatically, with almost 200,000 people from a diverse range of backgrounds to cater for. The entertainment industry boomed, with music halls and pubs popping up across the borough.

One of Hackney's oldest pubs, The Mermaid Tavern on Mare Street, was built in 1636. Back in the 1800s this was the place to be. The tavern's pleasure gardens boasted hot air balloon ascents, military bands and firework displays such as the elaborately named 'Boa Constrictor in pursuit of a Butterfly'. Today it is a fabric shop, and references its history in the name Mermaid Fabrics.

By the late 1800s music

Hackney in the past and today offers some of the most fun, diverse and inclusive entertainment halls, with a variety of comedy, speciality acts and saucy songs replaced the theatre as the main form of entertainment in the East End. These couldn't survive the arrival of the next form of popular entertainment however, the cinema.

The first purpose built cinema in the country was on Kingsland High Street, Dalston. Opening in 1908, The Amherst Hall could seat 707 people, and was designed by Frank Matcham, architect of Hackney Empire. It was demolished in the 1960s to make way for a Woolworths store, and is now a McDonald's.

Sports have also been a big part of leisure time in the East End since the 1800s. Victoria Park got a swimming lake in order to stop people bathing naked in the nearby bat-filled Regent's Canal in the 1840s.

From the 1860s onwards, local sports teams became a lot more common in Hackney. When upper class Eton Mission workers were sent to improve the living conditions of the poor in Hackney Wick, they set up football teams for young boys. These teams started using Hackney Marshes for football practice in 1889.

Today it is the largest area of public football pitches in Europe, with world famous footballers including Bobby Moore and David Beckham having played there as youngsters.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care, and Culture, said: "Hackney in the past and today offers some of the most fun, diverse and inclusive entertainment in the country with a consistent reputation of being 'the place to be'."

ELATT has helped people

Educating Hackney

By Harriet Worsley

YOU may have walked past the ELATT premises on Kingsland Road a hundred times without stopping to look at it. Indeed, the organisation flew under the radar for 31 years until this April when it hit the headlines.

The charity exists to give marginalised young people and adults a path out of poverty or exclusion through education. And it does so well.

At this year's TES FE Awards, a ceremony that recognises national excellence in the further education sector, it scooped an unprecedented three prizes, including the prestigious title 'Overall FE Provider of the Year'.

It is also rated outstanding across the board by Ofsted. So what makes it so special?

"Here, I can make a difference," says Oran Blackwood, ELATT's Youth Projects Coordinator and Inclusion Leader. He joined ELATT because, he says: "I wanted to work with young people in a way that other education providers weren't: I wanted to work one on one, I wanted to focus on pastoral care as much as education."

To do this, ELATT have developed a system they call 'connected learning'. First their courses – which are free and last between six weeks and six months – focus on technology, connecting students to essential workplace skills.

Next, they connect them to social and professional networks, to support them. Lastly, they connect them

"I wanted to work with young people in a way that other education providers weren't; I wanted to work one on one"

to other forms of help, addressing their welfare needs so they can overcome barriers standing between them and progress.

"A lot of our young people have special educational needs (SEN) or mental health issues," explains Oran. Adding: "They are well supported until they are 16, but then they fall through the gaps. We want to help the 33 per cent of young people with SEN or mental health issues who drop out of further education."

Sheldon Reynolds explains: "I'm a bit dyslexic, and I didn't like the crowds at school. I'd left education and didn't know what to do next when my mum and I walked past ELATT's building one day. We saw the sign saying they did courses in IT, and she persuaded me to pop in."

ELATT's courses work towards professional accreditations, qualifications which ELATT argues, are directly relevant to future employers. It was these subjects, from web design and development, to IT systems support and office skills, that drew Sheldon in.

But it was the small class sizes and personal support from staff like Oran that kept him there, earning his Level 2 Diploma in IT before moving onto a Level 3 apprenticeship.

ELATT has partners at blue-chip companies like Morgan Stanley and organises apprenticeships in areas like software development and business administration. By the end of the courses, an impressive 44 per cent of students are in work.

"You just get so much more support here than at college," explains student Maureen.

This one on one support is a big draw for others too, and a recent survey recorded a 97 per cent student satisfaction rate.

Georgia Tatham says: "I was at college before, but I was getting into trouble with gangs. A careers advisor told me about ELATT and Oran came all the way to my college to meet me. That had a really big effect on me. Two weeks later, I was starting a course, turning my life around."

Work placements are a big part of ELATT's model and it was during one of these that Georgia had a eureka moment.

She says: "I'd never seen myself as a receptionist, but I did a work placement and it just fitted me. Someone said I was the most helpful receptionist they had ever come across. Now I'm planning to go into office management. I have a real plan, and a stable future. My future is honestly looking so much brighter."

Woodberry Down Fun Day returned with a bang as families, friends and neighbours united

By Dila Tumer

MUSIC, food and laughter filled the air as residents came together on 4 June in celebration of community spirit. From free massages to international dance acts – this year's Woodberry Down Fun Day had it all.

The event was jam-packed, with locals turning up in groups, couples, or on their own to see what the hustle and bustle on The Green, at Woodberry Down, was all about.

Stalls with information about recycling, crime prevention, clothes swaps, delicious treats and much more filled the park, with hundreds taking part.

“I grew up on Woodberry Down Estate... It's been an absolute pleasure to come here and see the developments”

Lynda Downes, 47, said: “It's especially nice to see lots of local kids about, and even some pets. I'm volunteering here, giving out crime prevention advice.”

Children were dancing to the music booming out from speakers, then gathered in a circle on a mat as they waited for dance group Immediate Theatre to perform.

Oranges, greens and yellows whirled together with the performers' movements to create a mesmerising and colourful act as they danced, flipped and performed balancing tricks on each others shoulders, leaving many people speechless.

Kimberly Karshak, 14, said: “I'm having fun. I came here with my cousin to support our neighbourhood.”

Community safety officer, Peter Snow, 65, added: “Another great and successful day – thank goodness the weather's good. Not too sunny, nice and warm and no rain. What more can you ask for? And what brilliant dancers – fantastic!”

superheroes and more.

Hoxton-based Caribbean takeaway 'Shades' was catering at the event, offering a selection of jerk chicken, rice, burgers, hot dogs, coleslaw and many more mouth watering dishes to choose from.

Also providing food were the Red Moon Roots vegan food stall, which had a variety of natural dishes on offer including fresh watermelon, juices, pancakes and other delicacies.

Part of the aim of the fun day was to promote recycling in the borough and so free food waste bags and 'I Love Hackney' memorabilia were given out at various stalls.

The Deputy Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Soraya

Adejare, said: "I grew up on Woodberry Down Estate, moving away some time ago. It's been an absolute pleasure to come back here and see the developments."

The event was organised by the Council, in partnership with Berkeley Homes, Genesis Housing Association, and Woodberry Down Community Organisation.

When the redevelopment of the estate is completed, it will create 5,500 new social rented, private and shared ownership homes.

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

Speaking out for Hackney

A HACKNEY resident for four decades, former economics and social policy lecturer, and enthusiastic singer, Cllr Rosemary Sales is looking forward to a busy year ahead as the new Speaker of Hackney.

The Stamford Hill West councillor's top priorities will be fundraising for, and promoting the aims of, her two chosen charities, North London Action for the Homeless and Hackney Migrant Centre; as well as increasing awareness of road safety and cycling; and promoting music, especially among young people.

Cllr Sales said: "I feel very privileged to have been elected Speaker. Hackney is a wonderfully diverse borough and I look forward to meeting with communities, organisations and schools, and to working together to help maintain our traditions of living peacefully and harmoniously together.

"I am especially looking forward to promoting music and musicians within Hackney. I have been a choir member myself for the last 15 years. Music is something that really brings people together. Making music with other people is a great experience and I want to support young musicians to perform and share their talent."

Another issue the Speaker feels passionately about is road safety. She is keen to use her time in office to encourage all road users to consider the safety of pedestrians and cyclists, and to promote Hackney's reputation as a welcoming and safe place for all.

"I feel very privileged to have been elected Speaker. Hackney is a wonderfully diverse borough"

To kick-start this, she will be getting on her bike along with over 1,000 local schoolchildren to take part in this year's Bike Around the Borough.

During her year in office, Cllr Sales will be raising money for North London Action for the Homeless. It runs a drop-in session twice a week serving food and providing a social space for between 50 and 100 visitors. Open to everyone, the centre is a place where people can feel accepted and respected whatever their circumstances. The charity also hosts a gardening project, helps find accommodation, and provides outreach workers who work with people to overcome health and other problems.

She will also be supporting Hackney Migrant Centre, which runs a drop-in service and gives free legal advice for asylum seekers, refugees and recent migrants. Having volunteered at the charity for the past four years, Cllr Sales has witnessed first-hand the great effect the centre has on people's lives.

She said: "Many visitors to the centre have told me it has provided them with hope, that they were listened to for the first time, and it was a point when they could begin to turn their life around."

Cllr Sales is also looking forward to presiding at the borough's citizenship ceremonies. She said: "The ceremony marks the new rights people have gained, but also gives a sense of belonging to our community, of being at home. It is wonderful to meet people from so many different countries whose language, culture and skills add to Hackney's richness.

"Hackney's strength is in its diversity and it is this strength that I will be promoting both inside and outside of the borough during my time as Speaker."

A new Speaker is elected every May at the Council's Annual General Meeting by fellow councillors. Cllr Sales takes on the mantle from Cllr Sade Etti.

She will be supported this year by the Deputy Speaker, Cllr Soraya Adejare.

Cycling's role in the future

HOW is a major European capital planning for a car-free city centre? What are the implications of driverless vehicles for cycling? And how can data be used to improve planning for walking and cycling?

These were just some of the questions debated by 200 delegates at the fifth annual Hackney Cycling Conference on 10 June, hosted by the Council and Hackney Cycling Campaign.

The conference theme was cycling's role in the future transport mix, and delegates heard about cycling's potential to help resolve global, as well as local issues, including congestion, road traffic casualties, public health, air quality and economic resilience.

But reducing the reliance on the car is a big challenge. Speaker David Dansky said that the UK has to 'undo 100 years of social engineering'; while Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "Much of our space is still allocated along 1960s car-dominated priorities."

One city which is accepting the challenge is Oslo, in Norway, which plans to become more cycle-friendly. Rune Gjør, the city's Director of Cycling, explained that to make driving less attractive they are removing hundreds of car parking spaces across the city and building a new network of cycle lanes.

It is often assumed that businesses would oppose measures such as removing car parking outside shops. However, Gjør explained that shop owners compete to have car parking removed, and replaced by cycle lanes, as it makes their shops more visible.

“Much of our space is still allocated along 1960s car-dominated priorities”

James Long, from conference sponsor Steer Davies Gleave, warned that governments and planners need to act now to prepare for new technologies like driverless vehicles.

Dr Robin Lovelace added that, worldwide, road traffic accidents are predicted to be the third biggest cause of number of years of life lost due to ill-health, disability or early death by 2030.

The impacts on health were also highlighted by Andrew Gilligan, former London Cycling Commissioner, who said: "The struggle for clean air in London is as important as the struggle for clean water in the 19th century. That struggle cannot be won without a significant increase in cycling."

In Hackney, Mayor Pipe announced the planned removal of the gyratory in Stoke Newington.

He said: "It would make it much easier to access the town centre by cycle. We want to see cyclist priority and clear safe space improvements along the length of the A10."

"We're currently working with TfL to develop our proposals so that a consultation exercise can begin later this year."

The theme of consultation and engagement was touched on by Andrew Gilligan when contrasting the successful creation of the new superhighways (segregated cycle lanes on main roads) with the quietways (routes on quiet roads and back streets), which are due to be completed next year. He said that there is no formula to stop schemes being controversial as you can never please everyone.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods and Sustainability, said: "We know we need to bring communities with us if we're to keep making progress. But we also need to have the courage of our convictions. We need to keep the ideas flowing; keep winning the arguments; and always learn from our mistakes."

While there were sobering reminders of the difficulties in making change, Dr Lovelace concluded: "It would be easy to say 'well, we're never going to change, what's the point?'"

"But, in fact, we do change. There's been a revolution in how we've travelled around over the last 100 years and it would be foolish to assume that we're going to continue [to see car dominated transport] throughout the rest of our lifetimes."

East End Film Festival

23 June - 3 July, various East End locations

THE 15th East End Film Festival shares its opening day with the EU referendum. So it is more than a little appropriate that its programme of international premieres, industry masterclasses and live events explore Britain's film industry and its place both within and beyond Europe.

From the opening night gala on 23 June to a closing party on 3 July, British film highlights are many. 'Alleycats', the first feature from the acclaimed London-based filmmaker Ian Bonhote, gets a world premiere ahead of a theatrical release from Universal. Documentaries, meanwhile, include the London premiere of Gary Numan: 'Android In La La Land', in which the musician's wanderings through LA, depression and bankruptcy are explored. Internationally, there's a focus on Turkey: this year's director in residence is Tolga Karacelik and don't miss 'Frenzy', from director Emin Alper, a thriller set in a future world in a state of collapse.

Pride 2016

Stik with us

TWO people holding hands against a rainbow backdrop is the powerful symbol of love and equality that will adorn the Council's London Pride parade float on 25 June, thanks to world-famous street artist Stik.

The Hackney resident, whose singular stick figures are renowned across the globe, created the colourful bespoke banner especially for the Council contingent which will represent the borough at the Pride parade to advocate LGBT+ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, plus) equality.

Stik's two metre-high flag will be attached to the 'I Love Hackney' black cab, the focal point of the Council's walking group, as it makes its way along the parade route in central London on 25 June.

Residents are being urged to show their support by taking this special pull-out-and-keep print of Stik's artwork – which can be turned into a placard (see instructions below) – to Pride. Stik will be joining the Council float on the day. Come out and cheer everyone on.

The artist is known for his socially-conscious murals, including the 'Sleeping Baby' at Homerton hospital, which he created to galvanise people to stop NHS privatisation. Prints of the Baby have so far raised over £75,000 for the hospital's charity, Homerton Hope.

Stik said: "I'm delighted to represent Hackney in the 2016 Pride in London parade. Our vibrant and varied community is known around the world and I am proud to live here."

His banner, manufactured by Flagmakers – which makes flags for the Queen – will go on display at Hackney Museum, in Reading Lane after the parade. The Council will then auction the artwork, with all the money raised going towards a local LGBT+ charity or project. Residents are being asked to suggest ideas for what the money should go towards.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "In the light of the terrible recent events in Orlando, it is even more important that we come together to celebrate Hackney's and the wider LGBT+ community, and to show our solidarity, as part of London Pride weekend."

"We are very lucky that Stik has created this fantastic artwork for the event, which will be displayed as part of the Hackney delegation at the parade, and then sold to aid LGBT+ projects in the borough."

A volume of all of Stik's murals has been published by Penguin books. For more info, visit: www.penguin.co.uk/books/1099443/stik; or www.stik.org

How to turn your Hackney Today Stik poster into a London Pride placard

1. To make your Stik London Pride placard you need to find your inner Blue Peter presenter. Grab a sheet of A2 cardboard, a glue stick, some drawing pins, and a broom handle

2. Take the fabulous centre fold Hackney Today poster and glue it to the A2 cardboard sheet. If you're a perfectionist, you may want to trim the edges of the card

3. Using all your remaining strength, pin the cardboard to the broom handle at both ends to ensure the poster remains secure

4. And get ready to march people. #nofilter #stikstudio

Our guide to Pride in London and the spectacular parade on 25 June

Photo:
Matias
Altbach

AN ESTIMATED one million people from across the country will descend on the capital on 25 June, for the Pride in London parade.

It is the traditionally flamboyant zenith of a two-week long Pride festival of events, talks, performance and music, which started on 10 June, to celebrate and represent LGBT+ culture and history; raise awareness of issues suffered by those marginalised; and link LGBT+ groups from across the UK.

More than 300 groups will take part in this year's parade – which sets off from Portland Place, near Regent's Park, at 1pm and ends at Victoria Embankment, at 4.30pm – and comprises charities and community groups, councils, the armed forces, businesses and religious groups, among many others.

The main stage in Trafalgar Square will have live entertainment from 12noon until 8pm.

The celebrations will continue on 26 June, with the free Pride in the Park picnic and concert, in Vauxhall Pleasure Gardens, from 1pm until 10pm.

The theme for this year's Pride is #nofilter – a call to live every day freely, as your true, authentic self.

Amen to that.

PREVIEW

Tempting Failure presents: TF2016

25-29 July, various London locations, including Hackney Showroom, Amhurst Terrace, E8 2BT

FIFTY performances, 84 cutting edge artists from around the world and just five days – it's going to be hard to squeeze everything in to the Tempting Failure festival this summer.

From 21 to 29 July, it returns to London with what Louis Kiedan, Director of the Live Art Development Agency, has called: "One of the most significant artist led projects in the UK ... committed to risk and innovation."

Luckily, Hackney Showroom is one of the festival's key venues, so you won't have to travel far.

Free half term workshops for kids aged five to 19 explore sound art, walking, drawing and performance. Meanwhile, performances such as FK Alexander – NOT(I), billed as a meditation on futility, female madness, isolation and life force, will intrigue more grown-up audiences. For more information about the festival, individual performances and ticket prices visit: www.temptingfailure.com/events

On its opening night, entry is free (before 10pm), the first 50 people receive a free rum punch and guest DJs play R&B, dancehall and garage all night. Free/£3/4/5. Ages 18+. Macbeth of Hoxton, 70 Hoxton Street, N1 6LP. Info: 020 7759 0508; www.themacbeth.co.uk/events/2016/7/1/punch-drunk

UK FUNKY

8 Jul, 9pm-4am

Be taken back to 2007 when UK funky took over the dance scene with its energetic beats. Key players in that movement including Roska, Geeneus, Donae'o and Crazy Cousinz are lined up for a special showcase. Expect to hear 'Devil In A Blue Dress', 'As I' and 'Party Hard'. £15. XOYO, 32-37 Cowper Street, Shoreditch, EC2A 4AP. Info: info@xoyo.co.uk; www.xoyo.co.uk/whats-on/summer-resident-2/

WHITE FEATHER BOXER

25 Jun, 7.30-8.40pm

It's April 1967: the heavyweight-boxing champion of the world, Muhammad Ali, defies the US military by refusing to fight in Vietnam.

Meanwhile in a shabby Bethnal Green gym, an elderly boxing trainer hears the news and recalls his own dilemmas of WW1. Set in Bethnal Green, White Feather Boxer is an extraordinary story about learning what's worth fighting for. £10-12. Ages 12+. Rich Mix, 35-47 Bethnal Green Road, E1 6LA. Info: 020 7613 7498; www.richmix.org.uk/events/theatre/white-feather-boxer

JIGGLES AND GIGGLES

28 Jun, 7.30-11pm

Quirky night, Hooray Cabaret host a series of Edinburgh Fringe previews with a touch of burlesque. Line-up includes comedian Joey Page, who is best known for his work on 'Never Mind The Buzzcocks', and award-winning musical comedian, Kate Lucas. £5. Ages 18+. Paper Dress Vintage, 352A Mare Street, Hackney Central, E8 1HR. Info: 020 8510 0520; www.paperdressvintage.co.uk/2016/06/28

REVIEW*Soul*Until 3 July, Hackney Empire, 291 Mare Street, E8 1EJ

YOU may have heard it on the grapevine ... 'Soul' is now showing at the Hackney Empire. The play, by award-winning writer Roy Williams, follows the story of music legend Marvin Gaye, who helped shaped the sound of Motown and the mood of the Civil Rights movement in 1960s America. But on 1 April 1984, Marvin's father shot him dead. What happened on that day in Los Angeles, 32 years ago? The play opens with the fateful killing of Marvin at his family home and, narrated by his two plucky sisters Jeanne (Petra Letang) and Zeola (Mimi Ndiweni), takes the story back to the day Marvin was born, on 2 April 1939 in Washington DC, to try and uncover what happened.

The young Marvin (played brilliantly by Keenan Munn-Francis) used to sing in the church where his father was minister from the age of three, and religion continued to play a part in his life.

Yet it is the tempestuous relationship between grown-up Marvin (Nathan Ives-Moiba) and his violent, God-fearing preacher father (Leo Wringer), as well as his intense love for his mother (Adjoa Andoh) that is the main focus of this play. Were the seeds of violence already planted in the family well before that tragic day?

SUPERICIAL*Until 1 Jul, 7.30pm

A new play about the London gay scene, pop music and drag, which follows bar man Sam, Kylie fanatic JJ, alternative drag queen 'Ibiza Chilltape', and bar owner Benjamin as their lives intertwine on Pride night. £15/12 conc. Hackney schoolchildren are learning about nature with a new outdoor education programme at Woodberry Wetlands

News in brief

Hackney's schools' network

A NEW project is turning the traditional 'old boys' club' on its head, and bringing it to Hackney.

Ten secondary schools in the borough have joined a national scheme launched by education charity Future First. Aiming to support current state school students by harnessing the talents and experience of former pupils, the project has prompted over 150,000 adults across Britain to sign up and stay connected to their old schools.

The project aims to raise the ambitions and achievements of today's pupils by giving them access to role models, mentors, work experience, governors, donors and fundraisers

The ten Hackney schools currently involved in the project are: The Bridge Academy, Cardinal Pole Roman Catholic School, City Academy, Clapton Girls' School, Haggerston School, Our Lady's Convent High School, Petchey Academy, Skinners' Academy, Stoke Newington School and The Urswick School.

To sign up, visit: www.futurefirst.org.uk and click the 'Former Students' link.

Good Ofsted for Lubavitch

A JEWISH school in Stoke Newington has received praise from Ofsted for the way in which it successfully blends the National Curriculum with its Kodesh syllabus.

In 2013, Lubavitch Senior Girls' School was rated as 'Requires Improvement'. After Ofsted visited earlier this year, however, it highlighted the senior team's work to raise standards across the board, awarding the school a 'good' rating.

Examining the wider ethos of the school, the report praised its 'explicit focus on tolerance and respect for both the school community and for those of other faiths and cultures'.

Wild about learning

HACKNEY schoolchildren are getting 'wild about learning' through a new outdoor education programme at Woodberry Wetlands in Stoke Newington.

The nature reserve, which was opened by Sir David Attenborough last month, launched the scheme with help from pupils at Jubilee Primary School, N16.

Throughout the rest of the summer term, at least one East London school will visit every week, to take part in activities such as mini-beast hunts and pond dipping.

The programme, dubbed 'Wild about

“Outdoor education is shown to have many beneficial effects for children's learning, as well as being terrific fun”

Learning', is funded by a £500,000 endowment from the People's Postcode

Lottery to The Wildlife Trust, to support work to connect inner city children with nature.

By the end of the year, staff at Woodberry Wetlands aim to have worked with 620 East London schoolchildren, guiding them through activities designed to improve their self-esteem, confidence and abilities.

Edwin Malins, community engagement officer at Woodberry

Wetlands, said: "Just days after our incredible launch party with Sir David Attenborough, we began welcoming schoolchildren to Woodberry Wetlands thanks to this money.

"It means we can introduce hundreds of young people to nature right here in East London. Outdoor education is shown to have many beneficial effects for children's learning, as well as being terrific fun!"

Roma women get surfing with new computer course

ROMA women have been taking part in a computer course to learn new skills and earn accreditations in ICT.

The women have got to grips with computer basics, and have begun writing CVs, signing up to online job portals, setting up online payments and finding useful sites to help their children with homework.

Sandra Mrocjek, who was struggling to pass her driving theory test because she was unable to use the computer-based system, said: "Before coming to the course, I wasn't able to pass my theory test. But because of the ICT class I have been able to pass the exam."

The women learn through practical teaching, with one-to-one support for anything they are struggling with, and are also encouraged to help each other. Kinga Ciuron, who also attends the ICT course, said: "I feel good that I can help my children with their homework. I can also apply for jobs and help my family by teaching them what I've learnt."

The course is provided by the London Gypsy & Traveller Unit and funded by Hackney Housing Traveller service.

Celebrities including Paul Weller, Ken Loach, Fenella Fielding, Noel Gallagher and Denise Welch as photographed for Spitalfields Crypt Trust

Under the spotlight

CELEBRITIES have been photographed for an exhibition in Hackney to mark the 50th anniversary of a local charity.

Since 1965, Spitalfields Crypt Trust has offered a range of support, rehabilitation and training services for people facing problems of homelessness, alcohol, drugs, poverty or social isolation.

To celebrate its half centenary, music photographer Lawrence Watson was commissioned to create a free exhibition called 'In Darkness, Light'.

On display at the printspace gallery, in Dalston, it features portraits of people in recovery, alongside local personalities and celebrities who support the charity's work, some whose lives have been touched by addiction.

These include film-maker Ken Loach, rock stars Noel Gallagher and Paul Weller, and actress Denise Welch.

Lawrence said: "I'm delighted to be supporting Spitalfields Crypt Trust, which does so much important work to help vulnerable people rebuild their lives. I hope that people find this exhibition interesting and thought-provoking, and that it inspires renewed support for the charity."

The exhibition runs until 27 June and is shot with dramatic lighting, casting strong shadows intended to provoke reflections on light and darkness.

Chief Executive of the charity, Graham Marshall, said: "Rather than show more pictures of people destitute on the streets, these photos show people who are coming through to the other side.

"Their bravery in taking part in this is inspiring. We've been helping those that need our support in London for over 50 years and we're hoping to use our expertise to help many more turn their lives around in coming years."

News in brief

Thousands beat the streets

THESE boots were made for walking, and that's just what they're doing ... across Hackney, as four East London boroughs get involved in the Beat the Street competition. 'Beat boxes' positioned throughout the boroughs of Hackney, Waltham Forest, Tower Hamlets and Newham, allow participants to record the journeys they make by foot, bike and scooter.

Teams of adult participants use a special card to tap the boxes and record their trips, while children have fobs to activate them. They then track their progress through an online portal, with leaderboards displaying the results. The two top teams in each borough will win £500 and £250 in vouchers on 20 July. Last year, 22,000 people travelled over 103,000 miles.

This year, organisers Diabetes UK, the British Heart Foundation and Tesco hope to record an even greater overall distance, in a bid to encourage people to take regular exercise and raise awareness of diabetes and heart disease.

Hackney's healthy future

RESIDENTS are being urged to join a 'community conversation' focusing on a new five-year plan for health and social care services at an event on 28 June, in St Joseph's Hospice, Mare Street, from 6-9pm.

The plan has been developed by City and Hackney Clinical Commissioning Group, the Council, East London NHS Foundation Trust, Homerton hospital and other organisations across the borough and the City as part of a regional strategy that covers North East London.

It looks at some of the key health issues that impact on the area and how they should be tackled.

To book a free place, visit: city-and-hackney-go-local.eventbrite.co.uk; or call: 020 7923 8358.

Join the Great East End Walk and raise money for St Joseph's Hospice

FLAT caps, braces and pearly kings and queens are on the menu for this year's Great East End Walk, due to take place on 17 July, to raise money for St Joseph's Hospice.

The walk will take participants around East End parks and scenic canal paths, finishing with a good old fashioned summer knees-up at London Fields, with music, games, stalls and refreshments.

Amy Barbor and her friends are walking for their friend Susan Howieson, who died at St Joseph's Hospice in December.

She said: "St Joseph's created peacefulness for her when she was in pain and it is in the heart of Hackney, her beloved home for many years. This is why we are doing the Great East End Walk."

There are three routes to choose from; a five mile family-friendly route, or a 10 or 15 mile walk for those who want a challenge, taking in the sights and sounds of the East End.

Entry prices cost £14 per adult, £7 per child. Children under six walk for free.

To sign up for the Great East End Walk, visit: www.stjh.org.uk/GEEW; or call: 020 8525 6033. All entrants will get a free 'Cockney style' t-shirt and medal.

La expedición a Inglaterra

By Sally England

HACKNEY has a long history of welcoming new residents from all over the world, who arrive here to make a better, safer life for themselves and their families.

One of the more unusual migrations was in 1937, when 400 of the 20,000 Basque children who left home to escape the horrors of the Spanish Civil War of 1936-39 came to Clapton. The 'Expedición a Inglaterra' (expedition to England) was the largest ever single influx of refugees into Britain, with a total of 3,889 children.

Youngsters were taken to Bilbao where they were photographed, vaccinated and given numbered identity tags. They were then shipped out of danger to France, England, Belgium Denmark and Switzerland in May 1937, with the ships so overcrowded that children slept on the floors of the captains' cabins.

The SS Habana docked at Southampton and refugees moved to a specially prepared camp at nearby Stoneham. The people and businesses of Southampton were committed to providing food and clothing for the new arrivals, with 2,000 residents pledging their help and money.

Manuel Moreno later remembered the generosity that met them: "It must not be forgotten that this was the first time in British history that the British people opened their arms and hearts en-masse to say 'we will care for you'."

Three days later, 400 children were moved from Stoneham to Clapton and housed in the Salvation Army Congress Hall in Linscott Road. They had been selected simply by being the ones who responded to a loudspeaker call in the camp of 'who wants to go to London?"

“When we arrived at Clapton, they served us a stew of sorts, nothing identifiable. We all sat there, unable to eat it”

A huge crowd of mainly mothers and children greeted the 11 coaches full of refugees, waving and cheering and handing out toys and picture books.

But Congress Hall itself was old and dilapidated and not at all welcoming. The first meal was awful, as one boy recalled: "When we arrived at Clapton, they served us a stew of sorts, nothing identifiable. We all sat there, unable to eat it ... The same food reappeared at lunch and dinner; no one ate. A hunger strike!"

During the first night the older boys threw all the mattresses out of the windows whilst one boy escaped, and ended up being taken to prison and whipped. The police were called to deal with the uproar and the Basque delegate in London, Don Jose Lizaso, rushed to Clapton to give a tearful lecture to the now subdued boys on the bad example they were setting.

However high spirits soon returned and the children often escaped from the hall and the timetable of lessons imposed on them, climbing over the walls to explore the area, with Hackney Marshes being popular.

Brigadier Martin, of the Salvation Army, said: "The youngsters are not settling down too badly, but the girls are much better than the boys. The trouble is that these children have had no schooling since the war started and they are completely undisciplined.

The boys go climbing together over the walls and roofs like little monkeys."

He also asked for the public to stop handing out sweets and money to children and instead buy useful equipment such as text books to help the staff with their work.

By June, news of truancy and bad behaviour had reached worried parents back in Spain, who then inundated Don Lizaso with requests that the offenders should be punished in 'the good old-fashioned way, which would certainly be applied to them at home'.

Quite what that was isn't recorded, but local people did become worried that the children were being held prisoners and mistreated, attempting to storm the gates after the hall was sealed off and a guard placed outside. But this was in fact simply quarantine precautions after a girl developed typhoid, and the crowds dispersed.

The care and feeding of 400 children was expensive as well as difficult for staff. Some 200 were soon moved on, half to Brixton and half to Suffolk. By the end of July, the Salvation Army asked for the hall to be returned to its intended use in preparation for a large autumn conference, and over the next few weeks the last 114 children were moved to other sites or repatriated, their short but colourful stay in Hackney coming to an end.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. Head Chef, Amrit Bhachu, shares his delicious recipe for Thai chicken skewers and mango salsa. He says: "This recipe is great for summer as you can cook it on the BBQ and enjoy. It hits the sweet and spicy notes on your palate and will go down a treat!"

Thai green chicken skewers with mango salsa

Serves 4

Preparation time

30 mins

Cooking time

20 mins

Ingredients

- 8 chicken thighs, diced
- 2 tsp ground cumin
- 1 tsp ground coriander
- 1 tsp salt
- 2 tbs sesame oil
- ¼ tsp pepper
- 2 tbs light soy sauce
- ½ tsp garlic powder
- Pinch of cayenne
- 2 tbs brown sugar
- ¼ tsp grated ginger
- Zest and juice of 1 lime
- 1 lemongrass, chopped finely
- 1 tbs fresh coriander, chopped
- Bamboo skewers.

For the salsa

- 1 ripe mango, peeled and diced
- ½ red onion, diced
- 1 red chilli, diced without seeds
- 1 tbs vinegar
- 1 tsp chopped coriander.

Method

- For the salsa, grab a bowl and add the mango, diced onion, red chilli, vinegar and chopped coriander and mix well. Cover the salsa and leave in the fridge until the chicken is ready to serve
- Soak the bamboo skewers in water for 1 hour before you start cooking (tip: it makes them less likely to burn)
- Place all the ingredients into a bowl and mix well. Pour the marinade over the chicken and leave overnight in the fridge
- To get the chicken meat on the skewer, poke the sharp end through the middle of the diced chicken until you have 4 pieces on the bamboo skewer
- Place the chicken skewers on a hot/medium grill (use a pan if you don't have a grill). Seal the chicken on each side for about 3 mins over the heat, once done place onto a tray
- Preheat the oven to 180C. Once oven is preheated put the tray of skewers in the oven for about 6-7 mins
- Place the chicken on a plate and add the mango salsa to serve.

Have your say on Hackney's night-time economy

RESIDENTS are being asked to have their say about Hackney nightlife between 6pm to midnight, and midnight to 6am.

This would include socialising in pubs, bars, clubs, restaurants, music venues, theatres and cinemas across the borough.

The growth of Hackney's evening and night-time leisure economy has contributed to the borough's wider economic growth and to making Hackney a vibrant and fashionable place for people to live, work, visit and locate their businesses.

It brings many benefits to the borough, including employment and regeneration, but also brings negative impacts such as alcohol abuse and increased anti-social behaviour.

The Council wants to work together with residents and businesses to balance the needs of the night-time economy, and effectively manage its growth. Feedback will be used to inform the development of the Council's future licensing policy for the borough.

To find out more, and have your say on the Hackney's evening and night-time economy, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/licensing. The consultation closes on 17 July.

SCHEDULE 1

LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY
INITIAL DEMOLITION NOTICE, SECTIONS 182 AND 183 OF THE HOUSING ACT 2004 AND SECTION 138(A) AND SCHEDULE 5A TO THE HOUSING ACT 1985

THE MAYOR AND BURGESSES OF THE LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY ("the Landlord" and "the Council") hereby gives notice of its intention to demolish the buildings ("the relevant premises") known as 1-45 Marian Court, Homerton High Street, London E9. This is to allow for the building of new homes as part of the Council's Estate Regeneration Programme.

It is the Council's intention that the demolition of the relevant premises will be carried out within the period September 2018 to April 2019. This Notice will remain in force up to and including June 2023 unless revoked or otherwise terminated under or by virtue of paragraph 3 and 3A of Schedule 5A of the Housing Act 1985.

During the period of validity of this Notice, The London Borough of Hackney will not be under any obligation to make a freehold transfer or lease under Section 138(1) of the Housing Act 1985 in respect of any claim to exercise the right to buy in respect of any dwelling that is contained in the relevant premises.

This Notice does not prevent the making of a claim under the right to buy or the taking of any steps under this part in connection with any such claim up to the point where section 138(1) would otherwise operate in relation to the claim or the operation of that provision in most circumstances where the notice ceases to be in force but if the Landlord subsequently serves a final demolition notice in respect of the relevant premises, the right to buy will not arise in respect of it while that notice is in force and any existing claim will cease to be effective.

There may be a right to compensation under Section 138C in respect of certain expenditure incurred in respect of any existing claim to right to buy. Details of the right to compensation and how this may be exercised are set out in the attached notes (if applicable).

Signed .....

Patricia Narebor
Head of Commercial
For and on behalf of the Head of Legal London Borough of Hackney
Town Hall
Mare Street
London E8 1EA

Dated 20 June 2016

Notes

1. The Landlord may serve a Final Demolition Notice at any time during the period that this Notice is in force
2. Compensation under section 138C is compensation in respect of expenditure reasonably incurred by the Tenant before the date of this Notice in respect of legal and other fees and other professional costs and expenses payable in connection with the exercise by the Tenant of the right to buy. Any claim for compensation must be supported by receipts or other documents showing that the Tenant incurred the expenditure in question and must be served on the Landlord in writing within three months of the date of this Notice.
3. The Council can apply to the Secretary of State for an extension of the period that this Notice is in force
4. A Public Notice confirming the demolition of the Building has been placed in a local newspaper, in the Council's newsletter and on the Council's website.
